

MRS. MANDELBAUM NOT DEAD. NOW THE BREACH IS WIDENED.

She Contradicts the Report Herself at Hamilton, Ont.

And Has No Idea How It Could Have Been Started.

HAMILTON, March 23.—The despatch announcing the death in this city of Mrs. Mandelbaum, the notorious New York "fence," and published in New York and Chicago this morning, has no foundation.

Mrs. Mandelbaum was seen at her residence on Victoria avenue and reports herself in the best of health. She cannot imagine the reason for circulating a report of her death.

Mother Mandelbaum is dead.

The news reached this city yesterday and was made public to-day by Howe & Hummel, her lawyers, who have received authentic information to the effect that the woman died of paralysis two weeks ago in Hamilton, Ont., where she had been living since she fled from this city in 1886.

The names of new criminals are more familiar to the public than that of Mother Mandelbaum.

For thirty years she ran a fence in Grand street, where the army of crooks that ten years preyed upon the wealthy of New York got rid of their plunders.

Fredrica Mandelbaum was in the business for all it was worth, and is said never to have given the thieves more than 25 per cent. of what the plunder was worth. On the other hand, she was always ready to furnish bail when any of her friends got into the clutches of the law.

For this reason, and a reputation enjoyed of being as silent as the grave concerning the secrets intrusted to her, she was generally respected, as well as feared, by the crooks with whom she dealt.

During the years that Mandelbaum conducted her fence the police were never able once to fasten anything upon her which would insure her conviction, and it is said that this was a source of great mortification to Mrs. Walling, who exerted herself to the utmost to entrap the wily female Fagin.

The reason for her immunity from arrest was never stated, but the government announced shortly after her arrival a pull with certain officials in the Police Department and the District-Attorneys office of $100,000 of dollars every year for her protection.

Her arrest was finally brought about by a female thief named Mrs. Hobbs, a widow, who, it is believed, was sent to give to Mrs. Mandelbaum's pocket and for picking a woman's pocket.

The Mandelbaum refused to go to police station and gave up the $100,000 which let no other court for the police but to lay her case before the grand jury.

She was indicted, together with her son-in-law, Mr. George A. Weller, and the three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The manner in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Pinkerton detectives watched Mother Mandelbaum's house night and day, and when she went out shadowed her continually.

The man in which she escaped was exceedingly clever, and was planned and carried out by her son-in-law, Weller.

The three were arrested, but were released on $2,000 bail, and the trial set down for Dec. 4, 1884. Howe & Hummel were employed for the defense.

Open Hostility Between Knights of Labor and Garment-Workers.

Knights Will Probably Aid the Manufacturers' Association.

HAMILTON, March 23.—The despatch announcing the death in this city of Mrs. Mandelbaum, the notorious New York "fence," and published in New York and Chicago this morning, has no foundation.

Mrs. Mandelbaum was seen at her residence on Victoria avenue and reports herself in the best of health. She cannot imagine the reason for circulating a report of her death.

Mother Mandelbaum is dead.

The news reached this city yesterday and was made public to-day by Howe & Hummel, her lawyers, who have received authentic information to the effect that the woman died of paralysis two weeks ago in Hamilton, Ont., where she had been living since she fled from this city in 1886.

The names of new criminals are more familiar to the public than that of Mother Mandelbaum.

For thirty years she ran a fence in Grand street, where the army of crooks that ten years preyed upon the wealthy of New York got rid of their plunders.

Fredrica Mandelbaum was in the business for all it was worth, and is said never to have given the thieves more than 25 per cent. of what the plunder was worth. On the other hand, she was always ready to furnish bail when any of her friends got into the clutches of the law.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

Secretary White of Garment-Cutters Union No. 4, today published a statement wherein he declares that the war against the Manufacturers' Association shall be waged until either the latter yields or the United Garment-Workers are crushed out of existence, there will be says, no compromise.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

Mr. White was very indignant this morning over the statement made yesterday by Secretary Westcott, of the Knights of Labor, that several workers of the garment organization had been discharged from cloak firms by order of the garment workers' union.

"I have only one thing to say about that," was White's reply, "which is that we take no steps in opposition to the Knights of Labor, and I am justified in their open declaration that they would support the manufacturers in their threatened lockout next Saturday."

In the opinion of the Executive Board of the Knights of Labor, an Evening Star reporter gets morning.

"At a meeting to be held to-day it will be decided which side we are on. We are on the side of the Knights of Labor and the United Garment Cutters and the Manufacturers' Association. Let us see if we support the latter. By supporting the garment cutters' union we will only help to bring about a lockout."

Secretary White was pleased this morning to learn that the Knights of Labor had decided favorably to support the amendment to the present conspiracy laws.

We don't care particularly for an agreement with any side with the Manufacturers' Association," said Secretary White. "So far as I am concerned, we are not an agreement with any side, but I want to give to union men what they deserve."

The Association has no right to try to restrain us from doing a good job.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

He intimates that he may assure that the trade of the NY arms belongs to the Manufacturers' Association with in case of a lockout, to be transferred to retail dealers throughout the country to the 250 stores which do not belong to the Association.

HE MAY SUCCEED EIOMAN.

TRIED SUICIDE IN HIS CELL.

OPENING OF THE TEETOTUM.

$100 FOR HER BRUISED HEART.

THE WORK SOME WOMEN DO.

MRS. MANDELBAUM NOT DEAD.

NOW THE BREACH IS WIDENED.

HE MAY SUCCEED EIOMAN.

TRIED SUICIDE IN HIS CELL.

OPENING OF THE TEETOTUM.

$100 FOR HER BRUISED HEART.

THE WORK SOME WOMEN DO.

HE MAY SUCCEED EIOMAN.

TRIED SUICIDE IN HIS CELL.

OPENING OF THE TEETOTUM.

$100 FOR HER BRUISED HEART.

THE WORK SOME WOMEN DO.

HE MAY SUCCEED EIOMAN.

TRIED SUICIDE IN HIS CELL.

OPENING OF THE TEETOTUM.

$100 FOR HER BRUISED HEART.

THE WORK SOME WOMEN DO.

HE MAY SUCCEED EIOMAN.